Former California Governor George Deukmejian Endorses McKinney

Don McKinney adds former California Governor George Deukmejian to his growing list of conservative supporters.

MADERA—Former California Governor George Deukmejian, an icon of the Golden State’s conservative movement has endorsed local almond grower and cattle rancher Don McKinney for the 29th Assembly District. Deukmejian’s endorsement is the latest in a slew of conservative leaders to come out in support of McKinney’s effort to replace Mike Villines who is not running for re-election due to term limits.

McKinney was appointed by Governor George Deukmejian and later by Governor Pete Wilson as a board member for Agricultural Association 21-A the Madera District Fair. McKinney worked with his fellow board members to put the Fair’s financial house in order and as a result the Madera District Fair is thriving today. Now McKinney is working to bring his proven record of common sense conservatism to Sacramento in order to reduce taxes and cut the red tape that so often gets in the way of creating jobs for the people of California.

“I am honored by the endorsement of Governor George Deukmejian who I was proud to serve under as his appointee to the Madera District Fair Board. Governor Deukmejian casts a shadow over the California Republican Party almost as big as President Ronald Reagan and I am proud to have him supporting my message of common sense conservatism,” said McKinney.

Deukmejian joins former Secretary of State Bill Jones, Assembly Members Danny Gilmore, Dan Logue, Bill Berryhill, and Jim Nielsen, Fresno County Supervisor Phil Larson, Sheriff John Anderson and many more local community, agricultural and business leaders.
